
Fletcher Concrete and Infrastructure – Strategic Quarry Acquisition

Winstone Aggregates, which is part of the Fletcher Building group of companies, has recently acquired a strategic parcel of land for a proposed significant quarry development in New Zealand.

Greenwood Roche assisted Winstone Aggregates in relation to its acquisition of the land, including the obtaining of the consent of the Overseas Investment Office to the transaction (Winstone Aggregates is considered an ‘overseas person’ by virtue of the shareholding of its parent company Fletcher Building, which is publicly listed on both the NZX and ASX).

About Winstone Aggregates:

- Winstone Aggregates forms part of the Fletcher Building group of companies. Fletcher Building is a dual listed (NZX and ASX) publicly traded building materials and construction company. It is New Zealand’s largest publicly listed company by market capitalisation.
 - Winstone Aggregates is the largest aggregate company in New Zealand with 26 locations nationwide, and extracts 4.5 million cubic metres from the ground every year for roading, building and industry.
 - According to its website, Winstone Aggregates employs more than 300 people around New Zealand.
