
Malcolm Gillies announced as the recipient of the Greenwood Roche Supreme Excellence Award, at Wellington Property Peoples Awards

Greenwood Roche would like to congratulate Malcolm Gillies who was named the recipient of the highest accolade, the Greenwood Roche Supreme Excellence Award, at this year's recent Property Council - Wellington Property Peoples Awards staged at Te Papa.

Malcolm, a pioneering property developer, has created a long list of high-profile developments including the soon-to-be completed NZ Campus of Innovation and Sport in Heretaunga – one of the most advanced training and research facilities in the world. Malcolm, the managing director of Gillies Group, has also created residential developments including Riverstone Terraces, Wallaceville Estate and Plimmerton Farm, and industrial and commercial precincts such as the South Pacific Industrial Park.

The judging panel praised Malcolm for driving change in both residential and leisure property sectors in a region that is not only his work base but also where he calls home. They felt Malcolm had created a focal point and increased the desirability of Upper Hutt through his vision and work. That he achieved this and was well-regarded in the industry and well-liked by his team made him a stand-out leader and a fitting recipient of the Greenwood Roche Supreme Excellence award.

We would like to extend our congratulations to all other award recipients and nominees from the evening.

Thank you to the team at Property Council New Zealand for organising the event and celebrating industry success.

Greenwood Roche looks forward to continuing our long association with the Awards in 2023.
